which by reaſon of their voracity are more ſubject to crudities, and therefore to winds, &c.

He annexes to the whole ſeveral Appendixes; whereof one contains the Doſes of the received Emeticks and Purgatives both ſimple and compound; Another exſpatiateth into the praiſes of Hippocrates: The third conſiders the ſeveral Duties of Phyſitians, Apothecaries and Chirurgions: The fourth and laſt delivers a Method of making a good Herball.

ERRATA left un-obſerved in ſome of the later Tracts.

IN Numb. 73. p. 2197. l. 2. del. that whole line: that hole in ſome of the Shop-Kermes being accidental only, and ever on the bottom-part cleaving to the branch; and the time of gathering them for colour is without doubt before they are pierced, and whileſt the Animal is yet in vermiculo, and conſequently the Husk intire.

In Numb. 74. p. 2238. l. 38. r. h. 6. 37'. ib. l. 39. in col. 2. r h. 5. 52'.

In Numb. 75. p. 2244. l. 3. r. Real Infinites. p. 2245. l. 8. r. any proportion. p. 2247. l. ult. r. of $14\frac{4}{14}$. p. 2248. l. 36. r. not $14\frac{4}{14}$. p. 2269. l. 36. r. halitum meum. p. 2270. l. 27. r altit. eſt peripheriâ.

LONDON,

Printed for John Martyn, Printer to the Royal Society. 1671.